

They Laugh At War's Sacrifices

Top—With Japan eliminated as a source of silk, these New York models show how they intend solving the stocking problem, and a neat way it is, too. The girl at right is drawing seams on the bare legs of her friend and when she's finished you'll swear those lovely limbs are clad in sheer stockings.
Below—Not so petite, but none-the-less expressive, this photo shows Cabbie Mike McCann indulging in a hearty laugh at news of the eastern gasoline curfew. You see, Mike's cab is drawn by one horse power and, with no shortage of hay, he sees good times ahead.

Many Drivers Are Stranded By East's Gasoline Curfew

Majority of Stations, From Maine to Florida, Obey Ickes' Order; Traffic Remains Heavy

(By Associated Press)
A welter of sectional reports, in the absence of any official judgment as to the success or failure of the eastern seaboard's first gasoline curfew last night, appeared today to boil down to these points:
1. Virtually all service stations from Maine to Florida (except for half of New York's City's independent stations) complied with Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes' request to close from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. daily as a national defense measure to conserve gasoline.
2. The day-time sale of gasoline everywhere along the eastern seaboard exceeded the total volume

12 INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS; STATE TOLL 21

Lisbon Man Is Seriously Hurt As Car Plunges Off Highway

SIX INJURED IN THREE-CAR CRASH

Five In Family Killed As Railroad Train Hits Stalled Car

Weekend traffic accidents in the district brought injuries to at least 12 persons. Salem state highway patrolmen reported.
Multiple deaths—five in one accident and three in another—boosted Ohio's weekend toll from automobile and train mishaps to 21.
A fast Erie railroad passenger train plowed into an automobile apparently stalled on the tracks near Aurora in Portage county killing Mrs. Nelson Pulsifer, 30, of Chesterland, and her four children, Patricia, 8, Janice, 4, Wallace, 3, and Elsie, seven weeks.
Three Lakewood youths Robert A. Porter, 22, Bruce T. Marks, 18, and Ralph Russell, 20, died in a truck-auto collision near Vermilion.
Lisbon Man Injured
Kenneth Buckley, 27, of 529 E. Washington st., Lisbon, suffered injuries to his neck, right hip and chest when he lost control of his automobile on the Lisbon road, five miles south of Salem, at 1:25 a. m. Sunday.
The car left the highway, knocked down two telephone poles, overturned three times and came to a stop in a ravine. Buckley was traveling north at the time of the mishap.
His condition at City hospital today is described as satisfactory.
Six persons were injured in a three-car collision on the Alliance-Homeworth road, while a similar crash on Route 30, near Bayard, brought injuries to five others.
The accident on the Alliance-Homeworth road occurred at 8:45 p. m. Saturday, two and one-half miles south of Route 62, when a car driven by Laverne Unkefer, 21, of Paris, sideswiped a machine operated by Mrs. Mary Shirk, 41, of Alliance, and then crashed head-on with an automobile operated by Robert Sears, 19, of Moultrie.
Cars Demolished
Unkefer's and Sears' cars were practically demolished, the patrol said. Mrs. Shirk was uninjured.
Unkefer suffered a fractured arm and shoulder. Sears received several fractured ribs and lacerations and abrasions.
Four persons riding with Unkefer were injured. They included Harold Stump, 18, of Moultrie, who received a possible skull fracture, Albert Sikes, 14, of R. D. 3, Louisville, who suffered a concussion, James Willison, 18, of R. D. 1, Paris, who received a fractured jaw and severe face lacerations, and Edmund Jones, 17, of Moultrie, who received lacerations and abrasions.
The victims were removed to the Alliance City hospital.
Autos driven by Mrs. Hazel M. Crayton, 39, of Niles, Mrs. Blanche M. Stone, 31, of Vanston, Ill., and Betty Jean Treece, 17, of Goshen, Ind., piled up on Route 30, near Bayard, at 5 p. m. Sunday when Mrs. Crayton was forced to stop suddenly to avoid striking a child who ran in front of her car, according to the patrol.
The three cars were traveling in the same direction.
Mrs. Crayton and Mrs. Stone suffered neck sprains while Miss Treece and her mother, Mrs. Emma Treece, each had a broken nose.
Another passenger in the car, E. M. Quay, 69, of LaPorte, Ind., received lacerations over the left eye.
Leroy Morris, 24, of Alliance, escaped unhurt when his loaded coal truck overturned in a yard at Eagleton's Glen on the Lisbon road at 7:40 p. m. Sunday. The brakes on Morris' truck failed to hold on a downgrade, the patrol reported.
Willie Joe Reeves, 41, of Beaver Falls, was jailed here last night after his automobile collided with another driven by Fred Wiley, 26, of Alliance, on Route 62 near the Mahoning river bridge. Reeves is charged with reckless driving.
No one was injured when cars driven by Grant Moser, 33, of Alliance, and Mrs. Mildred Schultz, 35, of Ashland, collided on the Lisbon road, two and one-half miles south of Salem, at 11:40 a. m. yesterday, the patrol said.

LISBON MERCHANT, WIFE, ARE HELD UP

Trail Couple After Store Is Closed; Flee With Cash Loot

LISBON, Aug. 4.—Two gunmen obtained between $35 and $40 here Saturday night after trailing a Lisbon merchant and his wife after they had closed their store, and forcing their car into the ditch.
The young men, both armed, forced the car of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sweeney into a ditch near their home three miles north of here on the Leetonia road, and at the point of guns demanded their money, thinking they had the receipts of the store in the car.
When they were told there was no money, the one robber reached into the car and rummaged through a basket of groceries, pulling out Mrs. Sweeney's purse, and then after taking the car keys, the robbers escaped in a new car headed toward Leetonia.
Sweeney noted the license number, and as the bandits fled, hurried to his home 100 yards distant where he telephoned the office of Sheriff George Hayes, and although the holdup was broadcast over the police radio and deputies were on the scene within five minutes, no trace of the bandits could be found. A check of the license number revealed it had been stolen from an East Liverpool car, parked here Saturday evening.
The car been seen parked near the store on two occasions that evening, Sheriff George Hayes expressed the opinion they had planned a hold-up at the store, but the right moment did not present itself before the store was closed.

GERMANS GAIN IN KIEV DRIVE

Reds Claim Foe Tank Corps Destroyed; British Moves Are Rumored

(By Associated Press)
German troops lunging past the bloody Zhitomir sector on the southern front have advanced within 50 miles of Kiev, capital of the Soviet Ukraine, the Russians admitted today, while both sides told of new slaughter by the thousands in the 44-day-old struggle.
Adolf Hitler's high command also claimed new success on the vital central front guarding Moscow.
"The bulk of Soviet armed forces trapped east of Smolensk now have been destroyed. The remainder is facing dissolution," a German communique said.
Smolensk is 230 miles west of Moscow.
Nazi dispatches said 2,300 Russians were killed, thousands taken prisoners and 71 tanks captured in an unattended northern area. This may have been the same action reported by the German high command, which said 10,000 Red army troops were taken prisoner west of Lake Pelpus in Estonia, on the northern front below Leningrad, along with many tanks, cannon and supplies.
The Russians countered with a report that a Soviet tank column smashed through German forces near "N" town on the northwest front, killing at least 1,000 Nazi soldiers and littering the battlefield with the wreckage of more than 100 shell-torn tanks, armored cars and quantities of field artillery.
Meanwhile, a flood of reports—unconfirmed but officially unchallenged—persisted in London that Britain would soon dispatch an expeditionary force to open up a northern European front, possibly in Finland.
London newspapers carried advice from Göteborg, Sweden, that a large British naval force was already in the Arctic.

REPORT BIG WARSHIP IN TROUBLE ZONE

Action Seen As Countering Japan's Movement Into Indo-China

JAPS CANCEL ALL SHIPS TO AMERICA

About 600 U. S. Citizens Left Stranded In Island Empire

(By Associated Press)
A British naval squadron including the 30,000-ton battleship Warspite was reported, without confirmation, today to have been sighted in the Gulf of Siam, presumably countering Japan's thrust into French Indo-China and toward other bases within striking distance of Britain's great fortress of Singapore.
At the same time, Japan was reported to have taken an ominous new step in the Far East crisis by cancelling all steamship departures for the United States, leaving about 600 American citizens stranded in the island empire.

The Warspite report, if true, would strongly indicate Britain's determination to meet new threats to British interests with increased power.
Warspite, if it is actually in Asiatic waters, is the first capital ship the British royal navy has sent east of the Suez in many years.

TOKYO, Aug. 4.—Japan took an ominous new step in the Far East crisis today with the suspension of all direct steamship service to the United States, leaving about 600 American citizens stranded in the island empire, reliable informants said.

Simultaneously, the Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the Tokyo foreign office, said the Japanese government next week was likely to invoke a complete national economic mobilization to cope with United States and British economic pressure.

While steamship departures from Japan were suddenly cancelled, two big Japanese liners in the United States west coast ports prepared for speedy dashes home.
At San Francisco, the $15,000,000 Tatuta Maru discharged the last of her $2,500,000 cargo of raw silk with emergency longshore crews working around the clock, rushed aboard 1,000 barrels of fuel oil and a ballast cargo, and sailed for Japan.

A Japanese tanker had previously sailed from San Francisco empty, the second to leave the United States without cargo.
At Seattle, the U. S. Heian Maru also piled her raw silk on the docks.
At sea, the Asamu Maru, which American passengers and a $3,000,000 cargo of raw silk, maintained radio silence, under orders from Tokyo.

TRAINING EXTENSION COMPROMISE

The impression deepens as the argument lengthens that opposing sides in the training extension compromise are talking about two different things.

Chief spokesman for the army, Chief of Staff Gen. Marshall, is talking about the best way to build an army, which is his responsibility as the man charged with the land defense of the United States and its territories. He would like to have a free hand to continue or not to continue the training period of selectees, national guardsmen and reserve officers. His position is that of a football coach who wants to be free to choose and reject as he sees fit, to attain the ultimate objective of a well trained team.

His critics are the alumni and "downtown" coaches who will hold Gen. Marshall responsible for his success or lack of it, but nevertheless insist that they have better ideas than he has about the handling of the material. If they prevail to the extent of interfering with his plans seriously, the United States cannot reasonably charge him with guilt for the confusion. The army cannot be developed without hardship and inconvenience. There is more reason for thinking so than there is for thinking the United States can become the "arsenal for democracy" by insisting on business as usual.

There is, fortunately, a prevailing feeling that the terms of whatever compromise may be reached will not be too hard on Gen. Marshall; that the men making an issue out of extending the term of training will be persuaded to save face in some way that will give the general what he wants. It is simply inconceivable that the defense effort might be permitted to bog down because of inability in Washington to agree on the proposition that there is only one way to create a strong army. That way is to develop a strong army, which can be done only by adequate training—and no military authority ever has claimed that could be done in one year.

WHAT ABOUT YOUR ATTITUDE?

Over east, the sensation of the moment is Interior Secretary Ickes' announcement that ordinary motorists won't be able to buy gasoline after 7 in the evening or before 7 in the morning. In a lot of cases it will be mighty inconvenient.

Background for the announcement is, of course, transfer of oil tankers used to supply fuel to the seaboard states to Great Britain. The public assumes this had to be done to give the British the fuel they needed; that its inconvenience is negligible.

It also assumes that of all possible ways to conserve fuel, necessary because of shortage of transportation, not because of any shortage of fuel, the 12-hour blackout has been chosen as the best. It was recommended by spokesmen for the oil companies, themselves.

But the public has a right to be disturbed by the broad hint running through reports of the arrangements for the blackout that its principal effect is not expected to be a material saving in gas consumption but preparation of gasoline users for sterner measures later. This does not quite make sense. Where do officials get the idea that the public has to be built up to the right attitude?

It bears strong similarity to other measures used in Washington to ease the public into realization of what is going on—measures that so far have had the effect of making things harder, instead of easier. Things are going to be tough enough for a long time to come without public officials working overtime jabbing banderillas into the public hide in advance of the heavier blows. The best way to break bad news is to come out with it and lay off the suspense.

RESET BY DOUBTS

Fully half of the goose pimples raised by President Roosevelt's request for authority to control prices can be traced to the means by which it would be done. Among them is mentioned, specifically, licensing.

In 1907, President Theodore Roosevelt wanted to make interstate commerce corporations operate under federal licenses or charters. President Taft came out in 1910 for voluntary incorporation of interstate commerce enterprises under federal law. In 1919, President Wilson asked congress for a law requiring federal licensing of corporations, to keep prices down. He repeated the proposal in his annual messages of 1919 and 1920.

During the last war the food control act authorized federal licensing of persons engaged in that field and in the work of supplying other necessities. Food and fuel dealers were licensed, and licenses were required of importers and exporters. The food administration alone issued licenses to some 265,000 dealers, of whom almost 9,000 had their licenses revoked or suspended for violating regulations.

The national recovery act of 1933 authorized the chief executive, when he considered it was necessary for purposes of the act, to require interstate commerce enterprises to take out federal licenses to do business. The authority, granted reluctantly by congress, never was utilized, due perhaps to fears that it might be held unconstitutional by the supreme court of that time. A very ancient and very terrifying ghost has been evoked by the Roosevelt administration's proposal for licensing corporations in interstate commerce.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, August 5

A DAY of rather peculiar or intriguing forces is read from the prevailing lunar and mutual influences. This may vanquish obscure or dubious plans or objectives, culminating in rich performance and rewards. Under this vibration dreams and utopian ambitions have been known to "come true" and with thrilling climax. A simplification of plans, reducing them to practical possibilities of realization, should be worked for with vim and decision but not impetuously or rashly. With such restraints and clarification of obscurities there should be much success, with promotion, favors and aid of those in large organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which some cherished dreams or lofty ambitions may be brought into gratifying realization. Perhaps subtle, obscure or vague longings may attain concrete form. This may be through promotion, preferment, favors or from the blossoming of a superior creative talent. Large bodies, fraternities, political or cultural groups may contribute to this, but they should be approached with tact and strategy, rather than direct, reckless or tumultuous conduct. This might be disastrous to high hopes. Also be circumspect in all emotional situations in both business and private relations.

A child born on this day should be energetic and forceful, possibly tumultuous and hasty, yet will have talents of a high order, excelling in creative forms in art, music, poetry, or in business subtlety.

A news item says: "In order to save cloth, the Government will forbid any more double-breasted coats." It seems that the OPM does not want us to fight this war on two fronts.

Because of the frequency with which the players have changed sides in this European war, they should have numbers on their uniforms and furnish programs, so that we can tell which is which, or something.

Britain's Ark Royal can show a record of giving more lives for her country than any other unit of the fleet.

The Walt Disney studios have been tied up two months by a strike. Maybe Mickey wants more choose.

Low Fields, Eddie Leonard and Charlie Murray, three men who made the world laugh for a half century, have all died within a few days. Maybe they got the idea the world would never laugh again.

Here is a news item that says: "A New Jersey man wants a divorce, his wife being a back-seat driver." What did he expect her to be?

SCIENCE INFLUENCES LITERATURE

Savants Admit It, Says Dr. Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

During the last few years I have observed an interest on the part of my academic colleagues in the departments of the humanities in the influence of science on literature. They have discovered that science as it developed influenced the minds of the dramatists and poets and novelists of its day.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The charming Dean Nicholson of Smith College has turned from her interest in English literature to compose such stimulating essays as "The Microscope and the Imagination" and "The Telescope and the Imagination."

Euclid Was Creative

There is, to those of us who have labored in the vineyards of science and the history of science, a certain condescension in the attitude of the humanists. With a patronizing air of astonishment, they realize that Euclid was quite as creative as Shakespeare.

Appropos there is the reply Professor Cope made to the young man who asked him what use the putting together of the skeleton of the dinosaur was. "Friend," replied the Quaker professor with some asperity, "these do not ask the poet to write bills of lading or the painter to whitewash fences. Do you expect the abstract scientist to invent a patent churn?" The young man was outraged that "a grubber among fossils should dare to put himself in the same class with George Moore and Rudyard Kipling."

Aesthetic Fascination of Science

So science has its purely aesthetic fascination, too. I know a man who is the student of a disease which afflicts on the average of one out of 5,000,000 persons; furthermore, it is hereditary, fatal and entirely beyond the reach of treatment. He has seen only three cases in his life, but when it only a possibility, he packs his kit and starts, his eyes, meanwhile, filled with a holy light.

Another scientist, if you will, long ago became obsessed to know about the rites attending the obstructions of whales. He recently returned from the Antarctic and gullied some reporter into announcing as the "valuable discovery" of the trip the revelation that male whales were no monogamous, that they had sweethearts in every port. No! Science has revelations which hold us only because, like the Cathedral of Orvieto or the songs in "Cymbeline".

they are terribly beautiful and utterly useless.

Vacation Diet for Underweight

The underweight is thin because he usually has very little appetite. He has to work just as hard to eat without appetite as the overweight has to work not to eat with an appetite. Note that these meals begin with an appetizer—fruit, thin soup or beer, which here has its place in the dietary if anywhere.

Breakfast: Grapefruit; oatmeal with cream and sugar; hot biscuits with honey and butter; glass half milk and half cream.

Mid-morning: Cottage cheese; toast.

Lunch: Bouillon; creamed chicken on toast; endive salad with French dressing; chocolate custard with whipped cream; 2 whole wheat muffins with butter; glass milk.

Mid-afternoon: Glass half milk and half cream.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. S.: "In all of the advertisements of vitamins I have never seen Vitamin C mentioned. I have seen Vitamins A, B, G and D tablets, but not C. What is the reason for this?"

Answer: Vitamin C does not go into tablet form well. It loses its potency when heated. That is probably why it is not advertised except by food product firms.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

Tony stared after him. This was queer. Very queer. He thought it over as he joined Eric Thelme in the dining room. They sat opposite each other at the end of the long table which, even with its crystal and silver, seemed cheerless. Fritz served a cream soup and departed. Beneath the brighter light in the saloon, Eric's face looked mottled, criss-crossed with purple veins, baggy under the eyes. "How do you feel about getting to Cannes? I suppose you'll take a fine at the tables?" Tony, still thoughtful, glanced at the big fellow who was engrossed in his food. "Yes—rather." Eric brightened at the appearance of a periwinkle steak. "Now this is something!" he remarked. "I never did go for French sauces at all."

His English accent slipped. Tony studied him curiously. "You've probably tasted the food of all countries," he said. "Something of a traveler, aren't you? Of course, you've been to the States?"

Thelme grew a shade redder, helping himself again to the Irish whiskey at his elbow. "The States!—Ah, quite—Yes, of course. I've knocked about everywhere. Did my bit in the war—that was before your time. Matter of fact—" He turned, faintly bloodshot eyes on Tony. "I'm an army man. Give me a jolly good fight and I'm for it."

"I don't mind a real scrap myself, now and then," Tony agreed. "But I hope I never have to climb into a uniform. You're a major, aren't you? What regiment were you in?"

"Princess Pat's." Eric turned away for another helping of beefsteak. He couldn't bear just then to meet Tony's gray eyes. He'd been in the war, all right. And he had done his bit, but he was with the A. E. F. and not a major. And in Paris, after the Armistice, there had been a little matter of raising a check—Felix Norheim knew about that. Eric changed the subject.

"I visited your Palm Beach one winter. Topping place," he said in a heartier manner. He had left Palm Beach rather hurriedly, following an unfortunate game of cards. Norheim knew about that, too.

Tony smiled. "I can see you're a man of the world, as well as a man of action."

"D'you really think so? Eric was pleased. He liked young Worth—this Yank was top-hole!"

Tony bent suddenly forward. He had been leading up to this. "Look here, Thelme, it's none of my business, of course; but you seem to be pretty thick with Norheim. I don't get it. Tony's voice was blunt. "He's not your sort."

The purple veins stood out on Eric's cheeks. "To tell you the truth, old fellow," he burst out, "I and he stopped short."

Hoto had come into the room like a shadow. His nimble figure dived in black kimono, rimmed with black lace, on his small nose. He stood grinning and bowing before the two men but it was to Eric he addressed himself. "Excusing please, Mr. Norheim hoping to see you when convenient." He gave Tony a bland glance and was gone.

The effect of the Japanese on the "Major" was like a needle pricking a balloon. The big fellow seemed to collapse. There was nothing more to be got out of him. He took a large swallow of whisky and mumbled "You ought to see that little blighter wrestle! I'd hate to have him after me! I saw him break a chap's wrist once—husky chap too. It was as quick as this—" Eric snapped a twisted cheese stick in two.

Tony nodded, his face grave. "Jiu Jitsu. A friend of mine—Chet Weil, taught me a few tricks. I used to be pretty good at it."

"Mighty useful thing to know." But Eric's mood of confidence was ended. He became fidgety and distant over his coffee and cigar. Tony didn't try to pull the conversation around again. He had worries enough of his own.

While Tony had been drawing Eric out, he had thought of Hans, the seaman. Very possible that Hans knew something, for which he wanted money. Possible, also, that he had chosen for a rendezvous the dark, haunted spot of tragedy on the boat deck because they would be least likely to be interrupted there.

Eric made off with a sheepish "If you don't mind, ol' fellow, I'll toddle along."

Tony went below, his eyes sharp on the way. He saw no one. He entered his room, clicking the switch at the door, his gaze directed toward the table. He almost expected to find more white carnations. But there was nothing.

He went to his bag which he had purposefully left half-packed, and hunted under its jumbled contents for the 32 he had placed there in Corfu. It was gone, of course. He might have known it would be gone. Anyway, shooting was one of the things he wanted to avoid, with Marie on board.

As Tony straightened from his bag, a faint knock sounded. To his "Come in" Marie entered, but not entirely, for she leaned against the side of the door, holding it half open.

Tony's pulse jumped. He started toward her, but she put up her hand. "I'm not staying," she said, her eyes unsmiling. "I heard you come down, so that's why—I mean I wanted to tell you that I've been thinking a lot. I've decided to go home as soon as the Serena is overhauled for an ocean voyage. She's crossed often. Perhaps you'll be glad to hear this. It probably doesn't matter one way or another."

"My dear—Tony's face constricted. "You misunderstood me. I can't explain."

"You needn't," she said coldly. "It doesn't interest me."

"Maybe this will, then," he snapped. "Your guardian did send me over to look after you. And I'm going to. You're not to leave the yacht tomorrow until I take you on shore. And if you hadn't broken that fool engagement, I'd have dragged you away if I had to tie and gag you to do it. I was only waiting for Cannes, because I didn't want to start anything before—"

They glared at each other, as they had done on the quay at Corfu. But when she spoke, she had gained control of herself and only her fingers tightening on the black chiffon betrayed defiance. "You're very considerate, but too confident."

She raised her stubborn chin. "I shan't go on shore with you tomorrow, though. And I'm lurching with Nino at the Ambassadors." Her lip quivered as she was going away.

"Marie!" Tony cried.

AUTUMN HATS SIMPLE, EFFICIENT BUT ALLURING

North American women are more active than ever this autumn, and though efficiency is the watchword, they still want to look alluring in their new headgear. Hats this year are simple, with carefully molded brims, deep backs and feather trim, but they are also definitely feminine and becoming. The little pillbox, top left, is in black fronted by a blue and magenta cockade and backed by a lace snood—the perfect hat for dining and dancing. Below is a green felt with a corn-colored snood, repeated in the tufts on the softly manipulated brim. Right is a spectator sports or town and country hat in brown felt with wide “fender brim,” high crown and elongated backline emphasized by bird feather trim.

SIX, SEVEN MILES UP! In air no man can breathe—and live! Motors—now even pilots are “super-charged.” On the stationary bicycle (above) Marshall Headle, chief test pilot of Lockheed, breathes pure oxygen for 30 minutes before a test flight in Lockheed's new interceptor—one of America's newest high-altitude fighters.

CLIMBS A MILE A MINUTE—dives at speeds which are Army secrets. They call her “Lightning.” Test pilot Headle clambers into the cockpit, switches from a pocket oxygen flask to his cabin supply, and streaks for the stratosphere. He's test-flown 300 different planes. But when he lands, it's always... “Now for a Camel.”

YOU CAN'T SEE HIM up there. You can scarcely hear the hum of his motors. Then his voice comes into the radio tower: “Headle—35,000 feet—diving now.” And as he comes plummeting down in that shrieking power-dive, you just bop! Seconds later—yes, seconds—he's landing. And here he is (above) cool, calm, lighting up a Camel.

“Less nicotine in the smoke means more mildness to me,” says test pilot Marshall Headle (above), as he lights up his... and America's... favorite cigarette

THERE may be little traffic at 35,000 feet, but test-diving any new, untried plane is no Sunday joy-ride. No, not even for a veteran like Marshall Headle (above).

Naturally, cigarette mildness is important to Marshall Headle. And in the slower-burning cigarette of costlier tobaccos... Camels... he gets extra mild-ness—with less nicotine in the smoke. What cigarette are you smoking now? Chances are it's one of the five included in the nicotine tests reported above at the left—tests which trace Camel's advantage right down to the actual smoke itself. Obviously, the smoke's the thing! Try Camels. For convenience—economy—buy the carton.

E. L. Grate Motor Company Used Cars Guaranteed To Produce Full Value

SKILLED WORKERS RESTORE SERVICE

Purchasers Guaranteed of Many More Dependable Miles

The greatest amount of transportation value and pleasure that it is possible to produce is built into every used car sold by the E. L. Grate Motor Co.

These qualities are really built in because every car that comes into the Grate garage in trade for a new Ford or Mercury, or for another used car, perhaps, is gone over virtually with a fine comb. The wrinkles are ironed out, the noises are eliminated, and the mechanical parts of the car are reared to peak efficiency.

Naturally, an automobile which has piled up a number of miles is not quite the car it was when it came out of the factory. To say that it is, would be stretching the truth and the Grate company makes no claims to such miracles as this.

However, the Grate company does emphasize that its service department can restore the real value to any used car. A car may be abused, through neglect or for varied other reasons, and its potentiality curtailed to a great degree. But a session in the Grate service shop, with skilled mechanics operating, the entire car tuned up, readjusted, new parts applied where necessary, will restore that car to its full usefulness.

And that's what the Grate company guarantees when a used car is sold.

Many new Ford and Mercury models have been sold here and, as a result, the Grate company has had more than its share of used cars. They have cars for practically any purpose and will be glad to deal on conditions most favorable to the purchaser.

No Mess or Dirt With Iron Fireman

Here is how your basement can be made to look if you have an Iron Fireman installed. There will be no mess, dirt or oily fumes. In fact, with little expense the room can be as attractive as any in the home and can be built into a game room or den of which you will be proud.

The Citizens Ice and Coal company can show you many such arrangements that have been carried out in the Salem district. Aside from all this convenience, Iron Fireman does give you automatically controlled heat in every room of your home, and because of its construction, Iron Fireman does burn the cheaper grades of coal efficiently that, of course, results in a considerable saving in fuel bills.

1941 Chrysler Cars Have Smoother Ride

Chrysler's famous "floating ride," which owners find one of the car's most advantageous features, has been built up through the years, by a succession of engineering developments. Model by model, Chrysler corporation engineers have added features and improved the design of others until today a ride in one of these cars is the acme of rolling comfort.

More than 30 different features enter into "floating ride," ranging from aero-type shock absorbers to rubber-insulated body mountings.

Among the important ones are the sway bar, synchronized springs, ride stabilizers and independently sprung front wheels. Then, too, Chrysler's scientific weight distribution enables passengers to ride in the "cradled" area between the axles, instead of over the rear axle. In this area they are much less exposed to the jolt and jars of rough roads.

In the 1941 models the "floating ride" has been made even smoother through the addition of a transverse strut placed in front of the rear axle housing and running from the right side of the axle housing to the left side rail of the frame. The function of this new strut is to restrict the relative transverse motion between the frame and the wheels.

Value of Milk Is Stressed by Dairy; Inexpensive Food

You will be better fed if you use more milk, says Virgil Wilson, manager of the Old Reliable dairy at 840 W. Pershing st. and he goes on to explain why.

Some animal food is necessary in our daily meals. Milk is one of the best animal foods. It is indispensable for children and most valuable for adults.

Butter is better than other common fats, especially for children, because it contains certain substances which promote growth. Skim milk and buttermilk are valuable foods. They lack fat and consequently part of the growth-promoting substances and some of the fuel value of whole milk, but they contain the protein or tissue building material. Cheese is very nutritious. It is richer in protein than most meats and usually much cheaper. Ice cream served as a food is no luxury.

Saving Money
The value received, as well as the price, must be considered in counting the cost of food. Milk contains protein and mineral matter for tissue building, sugar and fat for producing heat and energy, and certain substances for promoting growth of the body and these food substances are in such form as to be easily and thoroughly utilized by the body. Milk is now the cheapest animal food.

We must increase our production of milk. If we decrease our consumption of dairy products, we discourage the production of more milk. A herd of dairy cows can be eaten in a week, but it will take from three to five years to raise a new one.

The real value of milk is not generally understood. It has had a place in the diet of man for ages past because it has pleased the taste and has been comparatively easy to get, rather than because its food value has been appreciated.

Don't Cut Down
When there is a slight advance in price, the lack of appreciation is shown by the fact that some families cut down the amount of milk used and go on using other foods that have advanced more in proportion.

No well meaning parent would knowingly deprive his child of the food necessary to give him a right start in life, much less would he do it for the sake of securing for himself something which has little or no food value. But this is just what happens when he cuts down the amount of milk used and buys coffee as usual.

A quart of milk and a pound of beef steak each contain just ¼ pound of solid matter and yet the impression prevails that milk is entirely liquid and, therefore, not a real food.

SINCLAIR PUSHES DRIVE ON INSECTS

Operates "Fly Farm" For Purpose of Constant Experimentation

Did you ever hear of a fly farm? Well, the Sinclair Refining company does maintain such a place, hatching literally thousands of the common house fly, taking the very best care of them so they will be hardy and full of life, all in the interest of developing a better and more effective spray to destroy this common pest.

Any woman knows that all insect sprays are not alike in killing power. But because of the experiments conducted at the Sinclair Refining company fly farm there has been developed a spray known as Sinclair P. D. that rates "Grate AA" the highest rating under the National Bureau of Standards, U. S. department of commerce specifications. Sinclair meets or exceeds all the "general requirements" for liquid spray type household insecticide under the commerce department's specifications C3 72-38.

Of all household insects, the fly is the most common and the most dangerous carrier of disease. Mosquitoes are the most annoying and they, too, are carriers of disease. Ants, roaches and bed bugs are all in the despised class and none of these has to be tolerated if the instructions on every can of Sinclair P. D. spray are carried out. Simple, easy to follow, instructions will rid any home of most any insect.

Sinclair P. D. spray may be had by contacting any Sinclair service station, at the Sinclair Refining company bulk plant at 421 New Garden ave., and from many other dealers of such materials. But be sure you get Sinclair P. D. that will do the work expected and not injure clothing, rugs or other articles.

Dry Cleaners List Few Simple Rules For Preserving Clothes

Drycleaning today is a highly developed scientific process and the National Association of Dry Cleaners, of which L. C. Price, manager of the Paris Cleaners on the Benton road is an active member, is attempting to educate the public as to what one may expect of dry cleaning service. Here are a few don'ts Mr. Price would like to have you remember—and some do's:

1. Don't expect the best cleaner in the world to be a magician if you get stains on your clothes that are next to impossible to remove, so
2. Don't handle deodorants carelessly. Follow the directions on the label and let the cream or liquid dry thoroughly before you put on your dress.
3. Don't spill nail polish remover on your dress. It is likely to dissolve the fabric in the same way it does your polish.
4. Don't use dark face powder, let the neckline of your dress become soiled, and neglect to have the garment cleaned. A stain that is difficult to remove will result.
5. Don't patronize an undependable dry cleaner.

1. Do inform your dry cleaner, if possible, what caused the stains on your garments. If it was a cup of coffee, coca cola or a Tom Collins, tell him about it.

2. Do have your garments cleaned often. Soil and stains become set with long wear or hanging in a closet.

3. Do store out of season garments early. A remember dry cleaning kills all forms of moth life.

4. Do have your clothes dry cleaned before packing for a weekend or vacation trip. Clean things are easier to pack and take up less room.

5. Do give your husband's clothes the same fastidious care you give your own. When he says "have my suit pressed" have it drycleaned too.

Gloomy? Buy Flashy Tie, Doctor Advises Patients

PHILADELPHIA—When you're down in the mouth and all the world looks gloomy, try a necktie—one of those real flashy ties that often come in Christmas packages.

That's the advice of Dr. J. C. Button, Jr., of Newark, N. J. "Command your patient to go out and buy the brightest necktie at the nearest haberdashery and note the sparkle in his eye when he returns."

"Maybe he still has his auricular fibrillation, but you have done something for him. You have changed not merely a tie, but an attitude."

Hard-Hitting Pittsburghers Take Salem Polo Team, 16-12

SALEM HORSEMEN FAIL TO CLICK IN NON-LEAGUE FRAY

Pidgeon, Smith and Sheen Each Tally Thrice To Lead Salem Scoring

Rallying several times but failing to ever take the lead, after the second chucker the Salem polo team yesterday went down before the swinging mallets of North Hills of Pittsburgh, 16-12. The Salem team played a hard, strong game but never hit the stride that is generally part of their stock in trade. Good hitting speeded the North Hills win.

During a fast fourth chucker and early in the sixth the local riders seemed to be in the groove for brief moments. In the high-scoring final frame the Salemites edged to within two points of North Hills, 12-10, after early goals by Will Smith, but they failed to hold their own as the visitors drove ahead. The non-league tilt will not affect Salem's second place standing in the Penn-Ohio loop, however.

Jim Pidgeon, Will Smith, and Tony Sheen each scored through three goals to lead the ill-fated Salem attack. Ray Moff and Pete Votaw each scored once and a pony goal accounted for the final Salem tally.

The Pittsburgh scoring was led by Mike Larrick who nudged the score-keeper's arm five times. Hal Everett followed with four goals, and Ed Wright with three, while Dave Smith and John Larrick each scored twice.

Game in Detail
Ed Wright opened the scoring by driving through an angle shot from close in and then galloped to the other goal a minute later to score again and make it 2-0 at the end of the first chucker.

Hal Everett made it 3-0 at the start of the second chucker, but Salem rallied with four goals in rapid succession by Sheen and Pidgeon to give the local riders their only lead in the game, 4-3. Everett closed the chucker by driving through a foul shot to even the score. Sheen, previously granted a foul shot by Referee Jack Hendricks, failed to score when his shot went wide.

Mike Larrick opened the third with three long, driving wallows down the field and through the goal at an angle to put North Hills in the lead again, 5-4. Goals by Mike Larrick, Dave Smith, and John Larrick brought the score to 8-4 at the close of the chucker.

Will Smith and Hal Everett each scored once in the fast-ridden, hard-played fourth chucker.

Ed Wright started the scoring in the fifth but was closely followed by Jim Pidgeon. Next came Dave Smith's drive that tallied for Pittsburgh as it went through the air two feet above the goal posts. Mike Larrick then scored, followed by Sheen and Moff for Salem. Moff's tally came after Hal Everett dropped the ball to the wrong goal where Moff took it and drove it through before Everett realized his error.

Will Smith opened the scoring in the third as he drove through a goal in the opening seconds of play. Less than a minute later Salem scored again on a pony goal but Pittsburgh rallied as Everett and Mike Larrick scored. Will Smith scored for Salem, Mike and John Larrick for North Hills, and then Pidgeon drove through the final goal of the game.

The lineups:
Salem: Moff, Pidgeon, Votaw, Sheen, Spares-Smith (Salem); Smith, Comfort (North Hills).
Score by chukkers:
Salem: 0-0, 1-0, 2-0, 3-0, 4-0, 5-0, 6-0, 7-0, 8-0, 9-0, 10-0, 11-0, 12-0, 13-0, 14-0, 15-0, 16-0.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—What a lot of us average guys would like to know is what Tami Mauriello is doing in there against Gus Lesnevich for the light-heavyweight championship of the world (New York version). So far as we know, Mauriello has made just one start as a light-heavyweight. Draw your own conclusions. The Giants are trying to get Babe Barna from Minneapolis immediately instead of waiting until next year.

Odditorium
There are two towns named Norfolk in professional baseball. Both belong to the Yankee farm system. Also, there are two towns named Columbus—both belong to the Cardinal chain.

Sports Cocktail
Last official act of Ted Mann as Duke publicity expert (he is leaving to join the naval reserve) was to nominate Steve Lach, the backfield star, for the All-America, well, we'll remember Steve. There have been four aces so far in the Peter Dawson ringer tournament. Jack Doyle's odds against a hole-in-one are $200,000 to one.

So far, 90,000 golfers from 302 clubs are playing in the tournament. The sister of Chris Dundee, manager of George Abrams, was so thrilled over George's victory over Billy Soose that she went from the broadcast to the hospital and had a baby.

Today's Guest Star
Dale Starbird, Detroit Free-Press: "Baseball fans in Washington are criticizing Owner Clark Griffith. They say he has a set price on all ball players—$200,000 if he's selling, and $75,000 (the waiver price) if he's buying."

MYTHICAL TITLE TAKEN BY WOOD

National Open Champ Wins World Championship In Match With Ghezzi

GIRARD, Aug. 4.—Craig Wood, covering up his 39 years with youthful vigor, today reigned over the world of golf as a climax to one of the greatest comebacks in the history of the game.

Winner of the National Open and Masters' tournaments but eliminated in the P. G. A. classic as he sought the coveted "triple," the blond veteran took the shortest detour to his goal.

Shooting nine under par, he walked off the 72-hole pro king, in a special 72-hole match for the unofficial world championship. Besides the mythical title, the 5 and 4 victory gave Wood $2,500.

The Mamaroneck, N. Y., star left Ghezzi and the week-end gallery gasping with an opening 63 and his resultant seven-hole lead stood virtually undented to the end. The sizzling round shattered the Macdonald country club's 12-year record of 64, set by home pro Tom Raklets, and beat par by seven strokes.

Ghezzi never got under way, either on the greens or with his famed short game. The match ended on the 68th green with Wood dropping a three-footer for a half after Ghezzi's second shot rolled off the carpet.

They played out the 72 holes with the victor carding 63-70-68-70-271 and the New Jersey pro 71-69-68-69-277. For the 68, Wood had an eagle, 14 birds and 8 bogeys. Ghezzi collected 13 birds and 10 one-overs.

The loser, 10 years Wood's junior and once his pupil, said "That 63 was too much for me."
Craig's next start will be in the $5,000 Rochester, N. Y., Times-Union tournament Aug. 15-17.

UNSUNG PITCHERS OF BROWNS TAKE TWO FROM YANKS

Niggeling and Harris Each Hold DiMaggio Hitless; Allow 6-Hit Total

On this day this particular story is bound to be about pitching, and it could emphasize several kinds, all of them good.

It could, for instance, go into detail about Bob Feller's 20th victory or the twin shutouts of Cincinnati by Jim Tobin and Johnny Hutchings of the Boston Braves.

But the biggest palm must go to two elbowers who don't come close to Feller in brilliance.

They are a pair of right-handers, Johnny Niggeling and Bob Harris, and they labor in the comparative obscurity of the St. Louis Browns. Niggeling, a veteran of 36, who was picked up on waivers from Cincinnati winter before last, and Harris a comparative youngster of 25, tossed in on the Buck Newsom deal two years ago.

Yet they caught the attention of the entire baseball world yesterday by stopping the New York Yankees cold.

Held DiMaggio Hitless

Niggeling, in the opener of a double-header, pitched a four-hitter that beat the American league leaders, 6-2, and broke Charley Ruffing's winning streak at nine straight. He not only kept Joe DiMaggio hitless for the first time in 17 contests, but was the first pitcher in 94 games able to keep the great Giuseppe from getting on base.

Then Harris came along with a handsome two-hitter in the nightcap for a 5-0 shutout, the first Yank blanking since May 30. He also held DiMag without a hit, and completed destruction of another Yankee record—that of not having lost a double-header all season.

Feller's 20th triumph for Cleveland came in the first tilt of a twin bill with the Philadelphia Athletics that drew a record Shibe Park crowd of 40,200. Rapid Roubert held the A's to three hits as the Indians won, 6-3. The Tribe missed a chance to pick up two full games on the Yankees by losing the second encounter, 4-3.

Lyons Shut Out Senators

Ted Lyons, who didn't walk a man, had 18-hit support from the White Sox in gaining his 9-0 triumph over the Senators.

The Detroit Tigers built up an early lead for Hal Newhouser as he turned back the Boston Red Sox, 6-3.

Mort Cooper, making his first start for the St. Louis Cardinals since June 17, and Lon Warneke getting his 13th win of the year, combined to hold the Phillies to 11 hits for two 6-1 victories.

Cooper, operated upon June 23 for removal of a bone growth on his pitching arm, showed no signs of after-effects while allowing only six safeties. Warneke turned in a five-hitter.

The Dodgers, ending their western trip with a four-game winning string, collected 15 hits in beating the Cubs 10-2.

For the Boston Braves it was five-hit pitching by Tobin and a three-hit job by Hutchings that blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 5-0 and 3-0. The New York Giants re-lapsed into their losing ways as they bowed to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-4 and 10-4, the latter in only six innings because of the Pennsylvania Sunday curfew.

Carrollton Beats Lake Placencia, 6-2

A four-run rally in the fifth inning gave the Carrollton Merchants a lead they never lost as they pummeled Lake Placencia 6-2 in a game on the Lake Diamond yesterday. D. Henning, the winning pitcher, allowed the Lakers only four safe hits as his mates collected 13 from Metzger. P. Leatherberry drove out a double to score the only extra base hit by either side.

FELLER WINS 20TH AS A'S FALL, 6-3

Tribe Loses Second Game, However, 4-3, Despite Homer by Heath

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—Bob Feller had his 20th victory in the bag today and the Indians came back to the wigan with only four wins from their 11 game eastern journey.

Cleveland's top pitcher won yesterday from the Philadelphia Athletics, 6 to 3, but the A's came back in the second half of a doubleheader to win, 4 to 3, the loss being Clint Brown's after he had relieved Joe Heving.

That made it two out of three for the series, which was a good showing for this trip, as the Redskins lost three to the Yanks, took one of three from Boston and split a pair with Washington.

Feller allowed only three hits, but issued seven passes, which led to the A's runs.

Talented Talker

KANSAS CITY—New situations hold no terrors for Bill Rice. The 16-year-old transplanted Texan was serving his first night as desk clerk at an apartment hotel.

For the first time he had a gun rammed against his ribs by a holdup man.

But—he talked the bandit into leaving without collecting a penny.

Anxious Hours

ST. HELENA, Neb.—Being pinned under his overturned tractor for two hours while his cries for help went unanswered was harrowing enough for farmer Frank Feiner.

But what really worried him was the fact the motor kept running and a punctured tank dripped a pool of fuel oil around him. He escaped injury.

WOODBURY, N. J.—A part of the underwater fortifications used to block the Delaware river to the British fleet during the Revolutionary war have been recovered. Substantial sections of the fortifications—"cheveux de Frise"—were brought up by army engineers dredging the channel.

Sabotage Is Suspected As Detroit Factory Is Closed Down

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—A tool-making plant concentrating on defense work was virtually helpless today because of theft of its precision instruments, and a company official said he suspected sabotage.

Thieves entered the Majestic Tool and Manufacturing corporation plant, early Sunday, tied up the night watchman, ransacked cabinets and tool boxes and stole between 300 and 400 micrometers, as well as Gill blocks and other precision instruments.

"This raid on our plant appears to be more than just an ordinary robbery," said John W. Parker, corporation president. "It looks more like the work of saboteurs."

The company is working on lead orders for the Frankfurt arsenal at Eridsburg, Pa., and Springfield, Mass. arsenal and also plants engaged in defense production.

Most of the instruments taken were stolen from tool boxes owned by the 120 mechanics and tool-makers employed at the plant. Several sets of master micrometers owned by the company also were stolen.

Night watchmen at both of the plants said the thieves opened the doors with keys. "The men seemed to know just where to look for the micrometers and they did not seem excited. They worked fast but it took more than an hour to go through all the tool boxes, one of the night watchmen said.
